The Prairie Light Review

Volume 30 Number 2 Article 49

4-1-2010

Hoarfrost

Jill Spealman College of DuPage

Follow this and additional works at: http://dc.cod.edu/plr

Recommended Citation

Spealman, Jill (2010) "Hoarfrost," The Prairie Light Review: Vol. 30: No. 2, Article 49. Available at: http://dc.cod.edu/plr/vol30/iss2/49

This Selection is brought to you for free and open access by the College Publications at Digital Commons @C.O.D.. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Prairie Light Review by an authorized administrator of Digital Commons @C.O.D.. For more information, please contact koteles @cod.edu.

Hoarfrost

Jill Spealman

Frozen sigh of the earth, white.

Icy lace, crafted by snow sprites.

The gift of freezing fog paints our world.

Needling branches, prickling pods, lancing dried berries.

White rime gilds fences, as if touched by fairies.

Proof that the ground breathes, even in winter.

An odd name for something so beautiful, so rare.

Clinging. A beard of ice-crystallized hair.

Spiky lattice more precious than snowflakes.

Shy of sun's light, but one last act:

Frigid bristles shimmer down upon our path.

Glittering, rustling, fading.