Suit Delays New Campus; Other Financing Sought

Dr. Rodney Berg, College of DuPage president, was pessimistic at mid-week about starting classes in September on an interim campus but said developments in the next few days could change the situation drastically.

Construction on the interim facilities is being held up because of an expected suit to test state law which provides money for the construction of community colleges. Court proceedings on such a suit would probably take several months.

Berg said, however, other possibilities of obtaining financing are being considered.

One of these could be to interest private financiers to provide funds for construction and then repay them when the lawsuit has been settled. Berg expressed no doubt but that the findings of the suit would be in favor of the community colleges.

Picnic Tickets Now Available

Tickets for the all-college spring picnic to be held May 26 at Herrick's lake are now available at Finley Rd., Lyons and the Student Center.

While tickets are not necessary to attend the picnic, they are required for food. An activity card is needed to obtain them.

Students may obtain more than one ticket, enabling them to bring a friend. Tickets may be obtained until May 24.

Another possibility lies with a private area philanthropist who has become interested in the plight of the College of DuPage. Berg said a meeting with the individual has been scheduled.

If either of these alternatives proves fruitful then it might still be possible to have an interim campus ready for fall quarter

Commuter Bus Service Eyed for Summer Session

Shuttle bus service from Lisle and Glen Ellyn via the College of DuPage campus will be available for students during summer session this year.

John Paris, acting dean of students, said that two companies currently are bidding for rights to bus students from the Burlington railroad station in Lisle to campus and from the Northwestern railroad station in Glen Ellyn to campus.

Summer session campus, for an anticipated enrollment of 1200 students, will be the Finley Rd. unit, Glen Crest Jr. High and the National College of Chiropractic in Lombard. There may be buses between these buildings, although students should be able to schedule all their classes in one building.

Paris said that if the shuttle service proves successful this summer, it will be continued in the fall.

although classes might start a couple of weeks late.

Asked how the college would operate if money is not forthcoming, Berg replied, "Classes will be held in much the same manner as they were this past year. We will use some of the same facilities and are presently looking for others."

Although classrooms at Lyons and possibly one or two of the other leased buildings will be unavailable, the college business office is seeking others. There is one building now under construction which will be completed before September. The owner has expressed interest in leasing it to the college which could install temporary partitions for 25 to 30 classrooms. The building is located in the Glen Ellyn Lombard area.

Berg said the college is also exploring the possibility of using the smaller buildings at the DuPage County Fairgrounds. These also could be partitioned for classroom use. This alternative was not high on the list of preferred locations, he said.

The entire problem has arisen from a lawsuit being filed in the Carl Sandburg community college district. A group of land owners there filed a petition with the Illinois State Board of Junior and Community Colleges to secede from the district. When the seceding group was refused, the land owners found no provision in the state law for appeals of this type.

Poll Finds Pueblo Case Irks Students Most

A poll of 86 College of DuPage students by the Young Republicans club showed the strongest disagreement with present administration policy is the handling of the Pueblo incident.

The club said 38 of the students were independents, 33 Republicans and 15 Democrats.

On the Pueblo incident, 71 said they disagreed with the administration handling, 6 agreed and 10 were undecided.

Other results: Vietnam policy, yes, 22; no, 55, undecided, 10; draft policy, yes 25, no, 54; undecided, 8; 10 per cent surtax, yes, 22; no, 46, undecided, 10; control of inflation, yes, 29; no, 47; undecided, 11; balance of payments situation, yes, 10; no, 46; undecided, 31.

Forty-three said they did not believe the U.S. can accomplish domestic policies and win the war in Vietnam. But 35 said yes and 7 were undecided.

Surprisingly, 48 said no to lowering the voting age to 18; 29 said yes and 10 were undecided.

The poll was taken April 20. It also asked for choices for president of only five listed candidates. The results: N.A. Rockefeller, 25; Ronald Reagan, 19; John V. Lindsay, 16; Charles H. Percy, 15; Hubert Humphrey, 6.

In another poll here, the Young Republicans asked 131 students political preferences. Richard Nixon topped candidates for the presidency.

Nixon got 64 votes, followed by Eugene McCarthy, 32; Robert Kennedy, 25; Lyndon Johnson and George Wallace, 4 each. There were two write-ins.

WHAT'S IT LIKE ON AN INTERIM CAMPUS?

By Alice Yoder

You say you're tired of running all over the western suburbs to attend classes? You don't care to be considered a temporary inconvenience at the local high school? You dislike long walks from impossible parking lots? You hate the trek to the student union, if, indeed, you find it at all? You think maybe the powers that be could more efficiently find your transcript or put through your change of address if they were in a central office? So that's what's bothering you, Booble? Well, come September that will all be changed. . . . or will it?

As you have heard, plans are being made to begin the fall, 1968, quarter at the permanent location on Butterfield Rd. The temporary buildings are to be patterned after those of another new community college in western Illinois, Sauk Valley College at Sterling-Dixon opened its doors in September, 1966, and yours truly had the opportunity to be enrolled for the first year.

Since there will be similarities, it might be fun to help some of you crystal-ball gazers out as to what could lie ahead.

It was about this time of year, mid-spring, that our local Sterling paper printed pictures of ground breaking for the new Junior College. The site later proved to be beautiful, high on the wooded shore of the Rock River and miles out in the country. But at the time the only approach was a dirt road through a corn field. Contractors moved in while townspeople shook their heads. You couldn't build a college in a summer.

However, the administration did not know that. Pre-registration interviews were held in an empty bank building, teachers were hired, courses designed and redesigned, and interest in the community grew. Newspaper coverage was so persuasive that one day in mid-August I found myself meeting with a counselor.

Registration in the new building was delayed only one week beyond the target date, a rare accomplishment. Sauk Valley's early campus consisted of the one partially pre-fab metal structure on a cement floor. College of DuPage is to have similar temporary quarters but much larger. Since day and night students only numbered about 500, the major differences will lie in size with DuPage expecting 3,000 in the fall.

The building and furnishings there are much nicer than one would expect in a temporary quonset. The floor plan incorporates classrooms, offices, counselor's rooms and laboratory around a central area of library and student center.

One drawback was the absence of ceilings. Yes, I said ceilings. In an effort to economize since the building would be changed later, there were no ceilings except in a few strategic spots such as the music room. The idea seemed to be "If you don't look up you won't notice." Yet when a blast of hot air from the overhead heating pipes cleared off every desk in the room and eliminated all sounds emanating from the professor, somehow we noticed.

Several other instances of the fun-and-games result of no ceilings come to mind. One day our whole Speech class listened attentively as the French teacher in the next room sang "Silent Night" in French for her group. We showed our appreciation at the end by applauding.

On another occasion, I told a girl how I had just impressed my Speech teacher. In a speech to sell, I concluded by actually selling the product, home made candy. Imagine my furor, when several days later, while trying to take a Psychology test, I heard the same girl in the next room, using my words to sell her Speech class home made rolls!

Although the theatre room had ceilings, I do believe the walls were thin. One day our Drama class was completely absorbed in an impromptu mob scene. When someone finally broke character we were shocked to find the president of the college standing in the door pleading for quiet. It seems he was trying to conduct a meeting in his office next to us.

The only other major change that I would hope for in DuPage's new building would be in ventilation. Although the central library was economical and handy, as soon as the weather warmed, the rooms were stifling. The outer rooms had no cross-ventilation and not a current touched the center. Summer study in the library was impossible.

Having everything at one place,

(except for Physical Education in town) helped develop school spirit. Of course, we have been accused of apathy here at C of D and we were at Sauk Valley, too. An assembly program can have a captive audience if you're centrally located. Yet it still takes time to build traditions. Our new campus will not be an overnight cure for all ills. Sauk's basketball team often had the same type of following as we heard about here this past season. Bad!

I enjoyed the pioneering experience of beginning college in a new school. It's fun to tell how our English teacher had to drive 10 miles to sharpen pencils. Those fill-in-the-little-square placement tests were scheduled and in the haste to complete the school, someone had forgotten sharpeners.

My husband was transferred to Wheaton after I finished that first year at Sauk Valley College. I've enjoyed pioneering again this year. For seven months now I have faithfully hiked from the Maryknoll parking lot to the building for an 8:30 a.m. daily class. And walking is good for me, I keep telling myself.

Re Student Activities

"The role of student activities in part is to supply the practical opportunities whereby students are able under all requirements of intellectual endeavor to apprehend a phase of reality. The role of student activities, then, is to supplement the classroom by providing extended and different means of fulfilling the requirements of education. There is no antithesis between the classroom and student activities. At many points they are one in methodology; in purpose they are indistinguishable--they are alternating and interpenetrating means of enabling the college to be itself. Student activities, moreover, cannot be viewed as a service to students in the sense that this meaning is implicit in some philosophies of student personnel services. Student activities has a legitimate claim upon the college for a basic role in the total education of the students. It should be no more conceived as a service than mathematics, sociology, or physics. All are needed activities within the college. Together they assist students toward attaining a full understanding of reality." Herman Stroup, "Toward a Philosophy of Organized Student Activities".

Letters to the Editor

(Letters to the editor must be signed for publication. Only in rare instances will the name be withheld.)

Sir:

How many times have you heard someone say, I am an independent voter, or I vote for the man, not the party? Are you, whether of voting age or not, one of those people? If you are, and if you admit this position proudly, then you have my sympathy, for you have been grossly misled. There is no such thing as a political independent. Those who claim the tag are either unsure of themselves or their position or they are apathetic in regard to their government.

The political independent vanished with the advent of the two-party system in America. Since then, a citizen, a voter, could only cast his vote realistically for the candidate put up by the political party. He could not vote for the candidate's position, for his position is that of the party platform. If the voter doesn't cast his ballot consistently for the party and platform closest to his philosophical viewpoint, then the voter is irresponsible. He may as well vote according to the length of a man's hair, his kindness to beagles, or the five o'clock shadow under his nose. Better yet, it irresponsible --don't vote. Let those who have concern for their fate, and the fate of their country decide upon the nation's leadership.

Many of you reading this will be voting for the first time in national elections next November. To you, and to those not yet of voting age, I render this plea: Please, for the sake of our great country, know where you stand, be it right wing or left and support the party, be it Republican or Democratic, with whom your philosophies are most closely aligned. Join a young politician's club, YR or YD, and give voice to your thoughts. But please, above all, know your stand, know the platform, know the party and be a responsible American.

Thom Mason

To All C of D Students:

Thank you for the turnout at the election of officers April 24. I would like to give special mention to Paul Johnson and Ken Fox in their work that they put forth for all S.U.G. candidates. Personally Linda MacLennan made it possible for my election, with her tremendous enthusiasm she gave to all people working for me.

Thanks,
Dave Bishop.

Applicants Sought for Key Jobs in Student Government

Edward Hummel, new president of the Associated Student Body, announced Wednesday he is seeking applicants for key jobs in student government.

Hummel will take office in late May. One of his first duties is to appoint about a dozen students to special posts.

They are:

1. Recording secretary, who takes minutes of all executive board meetings.
2. Corresponding secretary, who handles all correspondence for the student government.
3. Five justices for the student court.
4. A court stenographer, to take minutes at meetings and hearings.
5. Secretary for inter club council to take notes and handle correspondence.
6. Auditor, to be financial adviser to the comptroller.
7. About a half dozen chairmen for special events.

Hummel said he will receive applications between 2 and 3 p.m. daily at the Lyons Student Government office.

The new president who headed the Leadership for Students of DuPage (LSD) also thanked students and faculty members who "worked to make this a successful election." Hummel won by 10 votes in a close election in which a recount was necessary.

Is It Love or Sex?

Love and sex are no more alike than salt and pepper.

It's the feeling of oneness that is so often mistaken for love, says an article in the spring issue of the Collegiate Challenge, an official organ of the Campus Crusade for Christ.

How do you know if you've got love? If you're not sure you've got it, you haven't. A lot of people marry only because they're fairly sure, says the article.

Mattress Derby Seeks Entries For Picnic

One of the features of the all-college picnic, May 26, will be a mattress race. Each team will be required to carry a mattress over a quarter-mile obstacle course. Sound easy?

Five members of the team (all men) are allowed to carry the mattress, the sixth member (a gal) must ride on top. Current pop LP records will be awarded to each member of the winning team.

With a little luck College of DuPage students may start a new inter-collegiate sport and the latest in college mania. The picnic is scheduled at Herrick Lake.

Spring Concert To Be May 19 in Downers Grove

The College of DuPage spring concert will be presented at 8 p.m. Sunday, May 19, in the auditorium of Downers Grove South high school.

The College Singers, the Concert Choir and the Community Chorus will combine efforts on Symphony of Psalms by Igor Stravinsky and Gabriel Faure's Requiem. The Concert Choir will also sing a series of songs alone.

The Stravinsky work, some 20 minutes in length, is a dramatic sequence of prayer, testimony and praise, starting:

"Hear my prayer, O Lord, and my supplication.

Give ear to my tears. Be not silent:

For I am a stranger with Thee, and a sojourner,

As all my fathers were.

O forgive me, that I may be refreshed,

Before I go hence, and be no more."

The Requiem has orchestra accompaniment and features as soloists Betty Lambert, soprano, and James Bagley, baritone.

Pianists at the concert are Phyllis Wallis and Judy Marder-osian.

Alas! A Farewell to Glen Ayre

By Ray Montgomery

Within the next two weeks we will see the beginning of the end of our first year as a college, with the passing of our first student center on or about May 17. Some of us will remember it, others will not.

In retrospect you may be interested in completing the following questionnaire.

CIRCLE ONE

- The Student Center at Glen Ayre this past year was: (a) a place to park; (b) a figment of Dr. Berg's imagination; (c) a hide-out for Slyfoot "Chubs" Maxwell (alias Ernest LeDuc); (d) a place to study during classes.
- In order to get to the Student Center on a clear day you had to: (a) be born there; (b) crawl through the Glen Ellyn sewers; (c) make plane reservations three weeks in advance; (d) be a relative of LeDuc.
- The thing I liked best about the Student Center was: (a) its out-of-state location; (b) the clean, sweet smelling air (behind the stables); (c) the good tasting water; (d) flying kites.
- The thing I didn't like about the Student Center was: (a) the echoes; (b) the crowds; (c) Jayne's coffee; (d) Jayne's cooking.
- One nice thing about having a pool of our own was: (a) it was nice to look at; (b) when it was empty, there was more room for the sunbathers; (c) it was a hazard for Mrs. O'Toole on the "morning after"; (d) What pool?
- The thing I liked best about the extra-curricular activities at the center was (a) playing with LeDuc's kids; (b) telling Mrs. O'Toole where they served good sandwiches and beverages; (c) teaching Jayne how to cook; (d) fighting off my date.
- I liked the people at the Student Center because: (a) they were SO quiet; (b) they were SO shy; (c) they weren't so quiet; (d) they weren't so shy; (e) they weren't!
- The one and/or only redeeming feature about the Student Center was: (a) its name; (b) Jayne's cooking; (c) playing cards; (d) playing!
- For future reference, the Student Center should: (a) be forgotten; (b) be investigated; (c) be sued for mal-practice; (d) does not apply to me. (If you checked "does not apply to me" do not read any further).

Those multitudes of Centerites may remember that the Student Center was the site of:

- The bonfire.
- Mama O'Toole's lunches and the Glub Lunch Club.
- Elementary card game skills (i.e. spoons, old maid, fish).

- A large number of mixers. . . FEW!!!
- Many club meetings.
- Fort Lauderdale North, or how not to have fun because you don't have any money, and you can't drink (this last may be mis-leading because it was proven that you could take the door off the Center by driving a car inside)
- Picnics - or Lake full of steak or "my roof's got a hole in it and I might drown" or "On the Waterfront".
- Twinkle toes Hughes and his reducing salon.
- Kite flying.
- The main office (s?) of the school paper.
- A hide-out for the student government.
- Choir practice.
- The ping-pong players.

For some it was fun. For some it didn't exist. For others a visit to the center was like "The Impossible Dream."

For those who knew the Student Center WELL, tack the questionnaire on your wall at home as a constant reminder of where you have spent the last eight months of your lives. You can also use it to explain to your parents why you were dropped from three classes for non-attendance.

Alas! Goodbye Briar, Goodbye Glen Ayre, SNIFF, Goodbye old Friend!!!

Chaparrals Clobber Joliet, St. Mary's Lions

It was a refreshing sound and, even though the game was not official, the College of DuPage baseball team looked very good as they outscored the St. Mary's Lions 12-7 in four innings Monday. The Chaparrals banged out 14 hits in that brief span. It was an encouraging performance, coming after a wild 9-6 win over Joliet last Thursday. The DuPage bats, dormant through the first three games, have come alive as of late and the outlook for a winning season is good.

DuPage didn't waste any time when they met St. Mary's on the Lions' home field. Bill Caprel led off with a long triple and scored easily moments later on another triple by Bob Burgess. Burgess scampered home on an error by the pitcher on Lee Weems' bouncer. Weems went all the way to second on the error and scored when Mike Clements singled. Clements then scored on a single by Rick Mertes. The Green and Gold scored seven more in the fourth but the game was called after that inning.

Mike Clements, slugging first sacker for the Green and Gold, drove in four runs against Joliet and then continued his batting surge by going four-four and driving in two runs against St. Mary's. Bill Caprel reeled off three straight hits to help the DuPage attack against the Lions.

The Chaparrals virtually walked away from Joliet. In that six run second inning, two men were out when Ed Rausch drew what appeared to be an innocent base on balls from the Joliet hurler.

Pitcher Tom Hahn promptly drew another walk and the Joliet bench began to stir. Five pitches later Bill Caprel trotted down to first with the third walk. Then Bob Burgess watched a fourth ball go by him and Rausch walked home. It wasn't over yet by a long shot. Lee Weems was also walked and Hahn walked home. Then Clements stroked a clean single and everybody scored. Mike ended up on second base and then raced home on Tom Ekenberg's single.

Against Joliet, the Chaparrals staked the opposition to three runs in the first inning and then pushed six of their own across the plate in the second. Tom Hahn pitched a strong game before tiring in the top of the seventh. Joliet touched the right-hander for three runs before Bob Behn came in and put out the fire.

Tennis Team Beats Amundsen, But Lose 2

BY TERRY KOPITKE

Last week was one on the down side for Tennis coach Don Sullivan and his netmen; as the College of DuPage Tennis squad turned in a mediocre 1-2 record. The Chaparrals first fell victim to Morton Junior College of Berwyn on Tuesday, April 16, by the shut out score of 3-0. Once again on Thursday, April 18, the C of D team was held at bay, this time by the Lions of St. Mary's by the same shutout score of 3-0. Then Friday, April 19, the Chaparrals picked up their first conference victory of the 1968 Tennis season by defeating Amundsen Junior College 2-1. The first match of the week, which was the Morton defeat, was played at Park Home Community Courts. In the first singles match, that was an abbreviated one, because Morton player Howard Smith arrived late, was won by Smith as he handily defeated Bob Cowan in straight sets 4-0 and 6-0. The doubles match saw Leo Godfrey and Chris Beard of the College of DuPage team up to face Greg Hargus and Mike Prihoba of Morton. In a fast paced match the Morton twosome came from behind to hand the Chaparrals and the Beard-Godfrey another loss: 5-7, 6-2 and 6-2.

Dan Wleler. Beard failed to do any better than Cowan as he lost to Wleler by the same score as Cowan did against Latronioc, 6-1 and 6-2. The doubles match saw DuPage doomed to another loss. This time it was the Lion doubles team of John Powillard and Jim Mikles that delt the DuPage pair of Paul Hartung and Leo Godfrey the loss. They bowed out by dropping two straight sets to the St. Mary's twosome, 6-1 and 6-1.

For the last match of the week, Amundsen Junior College traveled to Eastview Park in LaGrange to meet with the Chaparrals. By playing their finest Tennis of the season the C of D squad won their first conference match of the year. Bob Cowan of DuPage played Jim Vernon in the first singles match and lost in dual sets, 9-7 and 7-5. However, in the second singles match things were turned around as Jim Keough of DuPage and Philip Murphy traded shots with Keough coming out on top in two sets 6-1 and 6-1. In the doubles match Murphy and Bob Siblausdas of Amundsen teamed up against the Chapparrals pair of Leo Godfrey and Paul Hautung. The result was a two hour match that saw the DuPage twosome victorious in three sets, 6-3, 4-6 and 6-4.

College of DuPage Tennis coach Don Sullivan summed up last weeks play this way. "In St. Mary's we played a team that was undefeated by junior colleges all last year and so far has lost only one match this year. That loss coming against a four year school. When we faced Morton we played without some of our regular starters. Against Amundsen we played good tennis and won."

For their second match of last week the C of D netmen squared off against the Lions of St. Mary's in a match played at Eastview Park in LaGrange, the Chaparrals home court. In the first singles competition C of D man Bob Cowan faced Ken Latronioc in a match that lasted well over an hour. However, the length of time didn't help Cowan as he lost 6-1 and 6-2.

In the second singles, Chris Beard, College of DuPage, played

IRC Boom to Continue

By Dan Tumpach

There is one facet of the College of DuPage that is growing so rapidly students are generally unaware of it.

No, it's not the enrollment. It's the Instructional Resources Center, the IRC. The College of DuPage library, although library is an unfair description because of diversified materials selection, is on its way to becoming one of the better junior college materials and research centers in Illinois.

Last week the IRC inventory showed 15,000 books; 1,200 phonograph records; 171 tapes; 413 transparencies; 5,685 slides; 151 filmstrips; and 148 film loops.

This in itself is quite an accomplishment in just one year, but Richard L. Ducote, IRC director, said orders have already been placed to increase this number for next fall.

Ducote predicted the total in September would be approximately 22,000 books; 200 tapes; 800 transparencies; 8,000 slides; 300 film strips; and 300 film loops.

He said there would be a slight increase in phonograph records but he believed the College of DuPage might become a "national pacesetter" in junior college recording collections. He added the records are also for recreational purposes besides their academic value and that many students are readily taking advantage of this.

The IRC plans to have its regular hours throughout the summer quarter, but at the Glen Hill location only, since the College will already be out of Lyons. These facilities will be adequate for summer enrollment.

The IRC plans for the fall hinge upon the progress on the interim campus. At the campus the IRC will occupy 16,000 square feet in the center of one of the three buildings. Ducote said these provisions will be adequate for the next two or three years.

3,000 Full-Time Students Expected Here Fall Quarter

An estimated 3,000 full-time students are expected to enroll at College of DuPage next fall, according to Dr. Rodney Berg, college president.

The college expects to receive 1,000 more full-time students than were present when classes initially began in 1967.

Dr. Berg presented his projection figures at an adjourned meeting of the Board of Junior College District 502 last Thursday.

The Board adopted a resolution commending former Board member, Dr. Dale M. Lipe, of Naperville, for his services. Dr. Lipe was a member of the first College Board organized in 1966 and did not seek re-election for a second three-year term. The resolution reads, in part: "That the Board extends to Dr. Dale M. Lipe its earnest and sincere appreciation for his contribution in time and effort toward the development of the College; and . . ."

The great debate is ended. It's over. The reader can breathe easier. I will no longer write about the White Sox and the National League in this column. By blasting both the Sox and the N.L., I was hoping to stir the few students who are interested into becoming aroused. I should have known better. It was an uninteresting subject that was of no interest to anybody, apparently.

Many issues ago I wrote a story that pointed out the absolutely incredible apathy that dominates the student body. I got no reaction. I wrote another article on the same subject, only this time the barbs were a little sharper. Still no response. I penned one final article and the barbs dripped blood but the only reactions I got were muffled yawns and a gruff "Lay off" from a newspaper power in the school. So I did. But I'm back.

I've attended as many baseball games as possible and have followed the tennis team. Terry Kopitke has kept up to date on the track squad. The general view is that no one knows that these teams exist. The baseball home games are played in LaGrange, where most of the C of D students come from. Alas, not one student was interested enough to attend the first two home games.

One wonders what the players and coaches think of this apathetic outlook. Surely they must be concerned. A major job of any coach is to keep the morale on a team high; to make the players want to win a certain game. Luckily, for the college, most of the athletes that have gone out for spring sports have a great deal of pride and thus they are able to play at their best, not for an unconcerned student body but, rather, for themselves. What other reason could they possibly have for trying to win? Sure, they represent the College of DuPage and all the students that attend it, but when they get out onto the field before absolutely nobody, who is there to win for?

But, always willing to look at the other side of a coin, I must agree that it is very difficult for many students to attend the baseball games, the tennis matches or the track meets. You will notice that I said "many" and not "all" students. I have heard numerous very good reasons for not going to the various contests. Alas, I have also heard many weak excuses that border on the ridiculous. We have quite a baseball team, in case nobody noticed. The team is 4-2 at this writing, and are beginning to scare some of the powers in the NIJCC. There's plenty of action on the field, as evidenced by the Chaparrals recent 12-7, 4 inning game against St. Mary's. The contest saw the Green and Gold bang out 14 hits in only those four innings. It's better than the White Sox.

The tennis team is 2-2 in the conference and, something that merely points out the excellent job being done by the athletic department, the conference meeting will be held at DuPage on May 17. Some fans should turn out for that meet. At least I hope so. Coach Sullivan is getting the team into great shape and there's a bright future in store for the five tennis players that make up the team.

It's interesting to hear some of the excuses given for not attending the games. They range from "I usually do my homework at 3:30 in the afternoon" to "If I drive my car too long it overheats and then what do I do?" I've been listening to excuses for nearly three quarters now.

One thing the students have convinced themselves is that next year, with one permanent campus, more fans will show up for the games. There will be five home football games. But they will be played at West Chicago and how many people are going to go there from class instead of going home? Some students are expecting a minor miracle to happen. They think that, just by moving to one campus, the student body will suddenly become concerned with the teams that are representing their school. The basketball games will be played at night. With most of the student body living in LaGrange and thereabout, it will be along drive to see the cagers in action. What is going to make these students drive all that way to see a basketball game?

The same excuses that I have heard all this year will be applied somehow to next year's student body. Students will still have to drive just as far. The only way to get a large crowd to watch a football or basketball game is to hold the games at 3 in the afternoon when all the students are attending class. The administration can excuse all classes at, say, 2 o'clock and everybody will rush on over to watch the football game. It's possible. The same could be done in relation to basketball games. But, what is going to keep these students from going home instead of attending a football or basketball game? Nothing. And that is the way it should be. This isn't a high school where everyone is required to go to a pep rally and then on down to the field. The students will have to do it on their own. They will have to show enough interest to go and see what I've been writing about for a year. They didn't do it this year. What minor miracle will occur in the next two months that will put a thousand people or, and this is more realistic, 200, in the stands?

College students don't change their minds right off the bat. The people that stayed away from athletic contests this year will probably do the same next year. It's really too bad, considering that most knowledgeable coaches in this area are positive that C of D will become one of the athletic powers in Illinois within the next five years. These next five years will give indications of how the student body is going to support its teams. One year is already gone and another is just around the corner. So, don't say "wait until next year" because, once said, that phrase seems to linger on and on and next year never comes.

DUPAGE 16, WAUBONSEE 4

By Terry Kopitke

On Wednesday, May 1, the College of DuPage Chapparrals rolled to an easy 16-4 victory over Waubonsee Junior College. Although the score indicated a real creaming, the game wasn't the tune-up College of DuPage baseball coach Bob Smith had hoped the team would get before it faces Lincoln Junior College in second round play in the Northern Illinois Junior College playoff. The game will be played today (Thursday) in Canton, Ill.

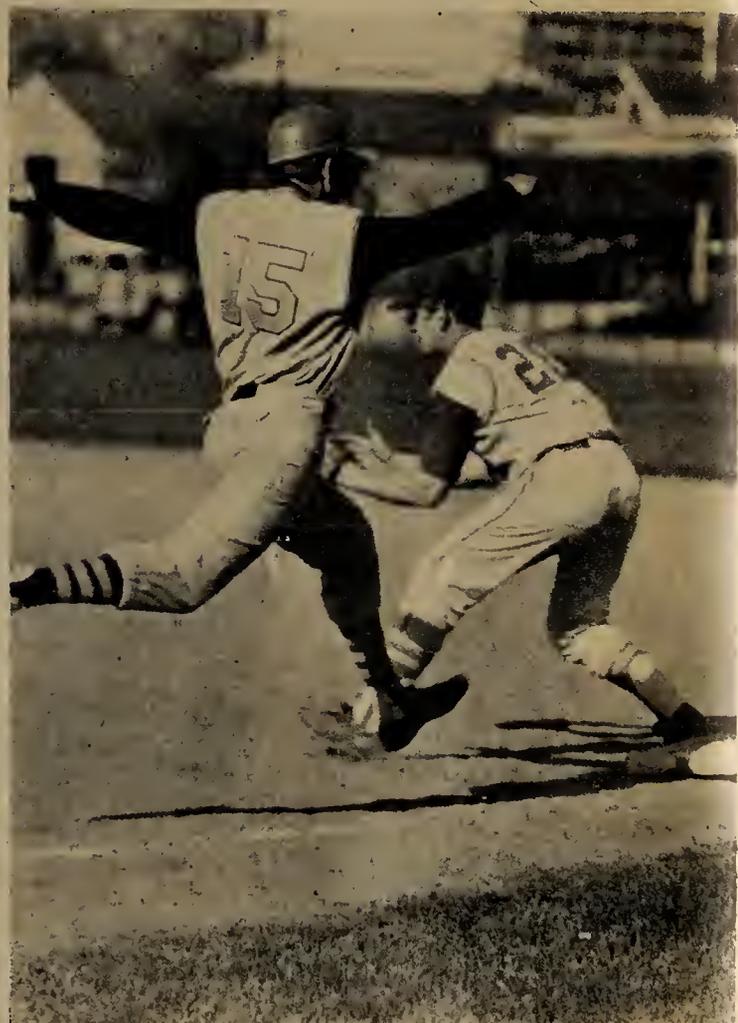

Even though the C of D team blasted out 10 hits, they were aided by 10 Waubonsee errors, five of which came on throws, and 10 free passes issued to them by Waubonsee's starting hurler. However, Waubonsee wasn't the only team that had a rough day on the field. The DuPage squad had its share of errors, committing five.

Waubonsee jumped out to an early 2-0 lead but by the end of the fourth frame DuPage held a 4-2 advantage, a lead it was never to lose. DuPage added four runs in the bottom of the fifth when Rick Mertes doubled to cap off the rally. In the seventh, the C of D SQUAD PADDED ITS M squad padded its margin by bringing three more runs across pay dirt, when Lee Weems lashed a double with the bases loaded. Then again in the bottom half of the eighth the Chapparrals added four more tallies to put the icing on the cake.

After the contest coach Bob Smith remarked that the C of D team had not really come up with a real solid effort. He noted that the defense was still very erratic and that the team is not hitting as well as it has shown it is able to. On the brighter side of things Smith said he was very impressed by the pitching performance by Tom Hahn, who went the route allowing only four runs on six hits. As an observation on today's game against Lincoln, Smith remarked that it had beaten Waubonsee 10-0.

Mike Clements, who has a seven for seven streak going over the last two games, beats out a hit on a slow roller to short. DuPage won the game 16-4 over Waubonsee. Photos by Bruce Lamb.

Tennis Team Tips Blackhawks, 2-1

The tennis team won its second conference match when they edged Blackhawk 2 - 1 last Thursday at East View Park, home of the C of D netmen. After Blackhawk's Ed Williams had taken DuPage's Jim Deough 6-2, Paul Hartung whipped Lyle Stratton 6-1, 6-4. Then, with the outcome of the meet hinging on the doubles event, Tom Talty and Lee Godfrey combined to beat Blackhawk's Francisco Guerra and John Newberg 6-3, 6-1.

The win gave the Chaparrals a 2-4 overall mark and a 2-2 conference record. The next tennis match will be against Wilson Friday, May 3. The match will be held at East View Park in LaGrange starting at 3:30 p.m.
