The marsh will change but survive

By Bob Green

The CD marsh must seem like a jewel to migrating birds. From high above they see the 12 or so acres of water, cat-tails, grasses, and shrubs as a natural oasis beckoning from a man-made landscape.

Birds notice the marsh, but people most often do not. People zoom down on Lambert Road in their cars, oblivious to a quiet little community trying to survive.

The marsh doesn't mind being ignored. If the people could just keep zooming past it would survive in peace. But the days of peace for the little marsh are now numbered.

The Village of Glen Ellyn and CD have agreed to widen Lambert Road to four lanes. The road construction, slated to begin in May, will cut deep into the western side of the marsh.

There is no doubt that the marsh will be damaged during the construction. Whether the damage will be permanent remains to be seen.

Saving the marsh from road construction is a thoroughly dead issue. The papers are signed, the deal is cut, and the road work is detailed in blueprint.

It is the part of the deal not yet in blueprint that offers the marsh hope of survival. The Village and the college have agreed to replace the marsh land lost to the road by extending the marsh to the east and north.

The details of this proposal have not been worked out, as yet, but statements have been made indicating a commitment to preserve the marsh area at CD.

"I think everyone at the college is concerned about preserving the marsh," said Harold McAninch, college president. "The marsh has value as a retainer of water and it has aesthetic value."

"Most of all, we want to keep the marsh as a teaching station. There really aren't many wetlands left in Illinois," he said.

Dr. McAninch acknowledged that some damage will occur to the marsh environment during the construction, but he said that precautions will be taken.

"We'll watch the construction work as much as possible to insure that no unnecessary damage occurs," he said.

Don Carlson, director of campus services, provided some specifics regarding the construction work.

"The road will be widened pending the arrival of federal and state funds," Carlson said. "The Village will then send a construction schedule to the college."

"It is proposed that the work start on May 1. The widening of Lambert is about a 4 month project," he said.

Carlson also provided specifics regarding

The CD marsh will undergo some changes in the next year as construction cuts into it at the southwest corner, just east of Lambert Road. However, college officials say that while the present shape of the marsh will be altered, any land that is lost in this area will be regained as the marsh will be enlarged in other areas.

Women try harder in men's' jobs'

By Lisa Tuttle

Women in vocational fields will often times work harder, out producing men, because they consider their jobs a challenge and are also expected to prove themselves, says Bill Gooch, dean of occupational and vocational education.

With women now making up almost 50 percent of the work force, it is to be expected that they will expand into vocational fields such as electronics, construction and welding.

"Women are increasing in these fields at a slow but steady pace. They are demanding the training for these fields," Gooch said.

George Stanton, coordinator of manufacturing and technology, said, "The lack of stability in the family today means that many times women will be the primary source of support." Stanton agrees with Gooch that the goal of pay is an incentive for women to branch out of their traditional roles.

Women now earn only 60 percent of what men earn and 60 percent of today's families have two wage earners. Despite this Gooch believes that, "if women have the same skills as men, they will be paid the same."

He says that even with this difference in earnings the trend is continually heading for equal pay.

Data processing and electronics, for example, are fields appealing to women. The pay is good and also typing skills are necessary.

"Right or wrong, women traditionally are capable of typing," Gooch said.

However, Gooch said, women are not at all handicapped by inferior strength.

"Even in construction, you don't have to be very strong. But you must have endurance, for cold weather, dirty work and things like this. You don't have to be a big brawny person," he said.

Stanton agrees. "Any heavy lifting is done mechanically. A company doesn't want their employees, male or female, to do any lifting. It's dangerous for the company."

Gooch feels that women can excel because they are just as capable in math for problem solving and working with their hands. He says that women are more conscientious about their jobs and even get to work on time more often.

Co-workers will usually accept women in their field after they have received the same training.

"If you're the first woman on the job, it's going to be tough," Gooch said. "The hard part is breaking in. After that, it's routine and the men will accept you."

Training and performance are the keys to women's success in vocational fields, Gooch said. Industry is working for them, and counseling and advising are available for any woman considering such a career.

CD poet wins award in national competition

By Carol Wojcik

College of DuPage has a poet in its midst.

Her name is Patricia Hiscock and she recently won an award in the 1980 Writer's Digest Competition for her poem "On The Wings of a Gull."

The poem is based partly on her native New England home near Boston, and was created as the result of an assignment given in Bill Bell's Advanced Creative Writing class which she attended last spring.

Hiscock, a CD student, is not a novice at creative writing. She has been writing poems and short stories ever since she knew how to write. She feels that writing was just something she had to do. It was not based on any obvious desires or goals, she said.

Hiscock believes that writing comes from deep within a person and is an expression of one's self. She admits that to be successful in writing and publishing one must be dedicated, persevering in spite of many rejections and remaining true to one's self.

Bell says that Hiscock is "a good poet, a dedicated writer whose poems speak for herself." He also says that there is a lot of warmth in her poems.

In addition to the 1980 award, Hiscock has won numerous awards for her poetry in other local and national competitions. She placed second in last year's poetry contest at CD and has had her poetry published in national magazines for the past ten years.

Hiscock is married and has three children. She lives in Woodridge with her family and says that much of the subject matter for her writing comes from her family and the surrounding neighborhood.

NO CLASSES NOV. 11

There will be no classes on Tuesday, Nov. 11. This is the official observance of Veterans Day.

350 tickets sold 1st day

Tickets for CD's annual Madrigal Dinner are not selling as fast as they have in the past, according to Lucile Friedli, coordinator of student activities.

Some reasons for the lack of sales could be the economy, publicity and the cost of the tickets, which are $14 each.

Of the 900 tickets available 350 were sold on the first day of the sale.

Another reason for the slump in early ticket sales, said Friedli, was that in the years past there was no limit to the number of tickets one could buy. This year there is a limit of 10 tickets per person.

The CD Chamber Singers will perform at this Olde English dinner on Dec. 5-6. Tickets are available at the Student Activities office, A2059, until they run out.

Governor to greet groundbreakers

State and local governmental officials will be in attendance when CD holds its groundbreaking ceremony for the Student Resources Center Nov. 14.

The public is invited to attend the ceremony and reception which will follow. The morning's events will be held on the construction site, northwest of A Bldg. and east of Lambert Road in Glen Ellyn.

Opening remarks will be made by Dr. H. D. McAninch, president of the college, and James Blaha, chairperson of the Board of Trustees. Greetings will be extended by Gov. James Thompson. Also making brief remarks will be William Redmond, speaker of the Illinois House; State Sen. James "Pate" Phillip, chairman of the DuPage County Republican Organization; Jack Knuefer, chairman of the DuPage County Board and former state senator; and Donald deRosa, president of the Village of Glen Ellyn.

Walter Olhava, as Agamemnon, left, must decide the fate of his daughter, Iphigenia, played by Mimi Munch, while his son Orestes (Matt Weiseman) looks on. The play "Iphigenia at Aulis" will be presented in the Performing Arts Center on Nov. 6, 7, 8, 13, 14 and 15 at 8 p.m. Photo by Mary Ricciardi ding the proposed extension of the marsh. "When the construction is completed, the Department of Conservation will prepare an impact statement, and any area lost will be regained. The Village will be responsible for enlarging and replacing the marsh land," he said.

The marsh first appeared on the CD campus around 1970 during the construction of A Bldg. The construction work altered the landscape, causing rainwater to run off into the low lying area of the present marsh.

Cat-tails and other plants began to flourish in and around the newly formed body of water. Bob Satterfield, CD biology instructor, explained why a marsh was able to flourish at the site of the present marsh.

"No one planted the plants of our marsh. The seeds were already in the soil. Apparently a marsh existed at least 100 years ago on the present marsh land. That land was then drained and farmed, but the seeds of the former marsh remained," Satterfield said.

According to Satterfield, many varieties of plants, animals, and birds inhabit the marsh.

"Birds who have regularly nested at the marsh include red winged blackbirds, green herons, blue wing teal, marsh wren and sparrow hawk. Animals that live in the marsh include muskrats, meadow mice, turtles, snakes, and frogs," he said.

Satterfield also had some opinions about the widening of Lambert Road.

"I would, of course, prefer that the road not be widened, but if the college is willing to commit itself to preserving the marsh, I am willing to trade a few acres," he said.

Satterfield suggests that a berm be built between the widened road and the marsh. The berm and the vegetation growing on it would help to reduce the noise from the increased traffic on Lambert.

Hal Cohen, CD biology instructor, also expressed concern about the increased traffic.

"More traffic will frighten the wildlife. Also, the construction traffic will have an effect on the cycles of life in the marsh. Cohen said, "If construction occurs in the spring, the migrating birds may be scared off, and they may not return for years. If construction occurs in the summer, the nesting birds will be affected."

Cohen was not optimistic as he contemplated the effect of the road construction.

"We have to be very conscious of what gets dumped into the marsh during construction. If cement with lime is dumped into the marsh the delicate balance of life will be harmed. It is also unfortunate that we will lose many dead trees in which birds nest," he said.

Cohen added that he is grateful the administration has shown an interest in preserving the marsh, but he is not in favor of trying to replace the lost land.

German language trip gearing up for June

Applications are now being accepted for the College of DuPage Overseas German Program's annual summer session in Germany.

Each year the program makes it possible for 40 Americans of all ages and backgrounds to learn the German language while experiencing life in the German-speaking countries. The 1981 program, June 25 - July 28, includes some travel within Europe, but the greater part of the time is spent in residence in the ancient city of Konstanz, Germany.

Participants live in private homes in Konstanz or in the adjoining city of Kreuzlingen, Switzerland. They attend morning classes in German language and culture at Konstanz University for CD credit (prior knowledge of German is not required), and their afternoons, evenings and weekends are free for individual exploration and optional group excursions and activities.

The cost of this year's five-week program is $2,299. This includes round trip air fare from O'Hare to Europe; a tour of several European cities, including Heidelberg and Paris; bed and breakfast while on tour; full room and board during the residence period on Lake Constance; instructional costs at Konstanz University and many extras.

Interested parties are invited to attend an open information meeting on the CD campus on Sunday, Nov. 23, at 6:30 p.m. in K131.

Gracious dining planned for new campus center

By Shiela McCann

Food services at CD is finally coming of age. Ernie Gibson, director of auxiliary Services, says the dining facility in the new Campus Center will accommodate all the needs and services of the college.

The facility will include a main dining area, a private dining area, a serving area for the cafeteria and a main kitchen.

According to Gibson, the cafeteria area will use the latest concept in cafeteria design to produce a shopping center format for the selection of food.

A short order station will offer fast foods and deli lunches; a main entree area will offer more complete lunches; a separate station will offer a salad bar and a sundry station will offer juices, ice cream and desserts.

After selection is made at one of the stations, the diner can move directly to the cashier. This system prevents long lines of people waiting to be served.

For the aesthetic pleasure of the diners, curved windows will offer a view of the marsh area to the south and west of the campus, said Gibson.

A private dining facility will be adjacent to the main dining room. Groups of students, staff and faculty will be able to reserve this room for special luncheons and receptions. If this room is not booked, Gibson said they may offer a buffet lunch here, but he ruled out a separate dining facility for faculty.

Home Builders give $4,000 in scholarships

Students in the CD building construction program may now apply for scholarship aid to assist with tuition and books.

A total of $4,000 in college scholarships has been made available by the Home Builder's Association of Greater Chicago in conjunction with the National Association of Home Builders.

The financial aid office is now taking applications and a screening and selection committee has been set up to evaluate the applicants.

Instructors from the following disciplines will be available to answer questions about their subject areas, career possibilities, degree requirements, prerequisite skills, university transfer information, and personal development benefits: anthropology, business law, economics, education, geography, political science, psychology, sociology and social science.

Students will have an opportunity to meet with the faculty and may examine course syllabi.

DIVORCE STUDY

A "Mini-Study on Dissolution of Marriage" will be held Nov. 12 at 12:30 p.m. in the CD Women's Center, A3014.

WILSON TO LECTURE

The Performing Arts Lecture Series at College of DuPage will present Gail Wilson, performer and teacher, in a free public lecture at 7:30 p.m., Nov. 12, in the Studio Theatre, M Bldg. Wilson will deal with the function of the chorus in Euripides' classic drama "Iphigenia at Aulis," which is currently in production at the college.

BOOKSTORE SALE

The Bookstore is having a paperback book sale this week while quantities last.

"All the facilities will be used by everyone," said Gibson

Gibson says he believes that everything on the campus should offer the student an educational experience, including food. The cafeteria will offer students a wide variety of foods to choose from. Periodic ethnic days to enable students to experience foods they may not be familiar with are planned, said Gibson.

The new facility will also take into consideration special diets and food therapy.

"There is no question if we eat right, we could rid ourselves of our ills," said Gibson.

There will be a program, administered by the nursing department, to prepare foods conforming to a diet prescribed by a doctor. A station will be set up in the cafeteria for those interested to receive their specially prepared lunch.

Another priority of Gibson is to have input from students, faculty and staff regarding the foods they want to eat and other decisions concerning the operation of food services. To implement this, Gibson is planning to survey the people who use the facility. In addition, student government will be asked to set up a student advisory group to assist Gibson in planning a meaningful program.

"Every effort will be made to offer the best food at the best price," said Gibson.

The board policy regarding the financial administration of food service is that it should be offered on a non-profit basis and offer the utmost educational experience for students without making a big profit, but it's real tough to break even, said Gibson.

Big upsets this weekend put Chaps in first place

By Tom Nelson

Although the Chaps won their game this weekend it was the other games going on that caught everybody's attention.

With the news that Illinois Valley and Triton both lost their games against Joliet and Harper respectively, thus giving the Chaps sole ownership of the N4C crown, the gridders' 17-6 win over Grand Rapids College was just icing on the cake for the Chaps.

"We've accomplished our first goal (winning the N4C title)," head coach Bob MacDougall noted. Looking ahead to next week, MacDougall cited the things the team will have to do to get ready.

"We're going to need a great week of practice to increase team intensity, and we're going to have to be ready to go," he said.

Even though the gridders marked up another win on their gun belts the team looked like the weeks of conference play had taken their toll on them. Plagued by mistakes and the old nemesis "Mr. Penalty," the Chaps made a run-away game a close one.

A score in the first quarter was all the Chaps needed to take the win. That initial scoring drive came when quarterback Tim Crnkovich went to the air and connected on two key passes to Steve Jameson, one of which was for 58 yards. Two plays later John McGowna rolled in from the one yard line to make it 6-0. Tom Parsons came in and hit the extra point to make the score 7-0.

The second scoring drive was almost a carbon copy of the first with the big gainer coming again from Crnkovich on a pass to Darryl Wilson for a 44-yard connection which brought the ball down on Grand Rapids 31-yard line. McGowan and Dave Dillon teamed up to ram the ball towards the goal line and Dillon finally got the TD when he blasted through from the three-yard mark. Parsons added one giving the Chaps a 14-0 lead at 8:37 in the second quarter.

After CD's last regular season touchdown the mistakes started to hurt CD. On the next drive the Chaps pulled up to the Grand Rapids one-yard line where they were stopped short of their goal when the opposing defense halted three attempts by DuPage to score from the four-yard line.

Luckily for the Chaps, Grand Rapids couldn't capitalize on the Chaps' woes. In the third quarter the Grand Rapids squad fumbled three times (DuPage recoveries by Tom Stachura, Scott Swanson, and Bill Lobenstein), had one pass intercepted by Greg McGowan, and was forced to punt once. The Chaps could have gotten another touchdown but a penalty was called on DuPage after McGowan had returned his interception for a touchdown. On that series of plays, the Chaps had to settle for a 38-yard field goal from Parsons which put the score at 17-0.

Grand Rapids managed to get on the board late in the game when they faked a punt, ending a fourth-down situation and setting up their touchdown. Joe Karasiewicz finally took the ball in from the one. On the kick-off the Chaps had more troubles as Grand Rapids got the on-side kick-back. A sack by linebacker Mike Foley put an end to any Grand Rapids hopes. Slowly the clock ran out on Grand Rapids.

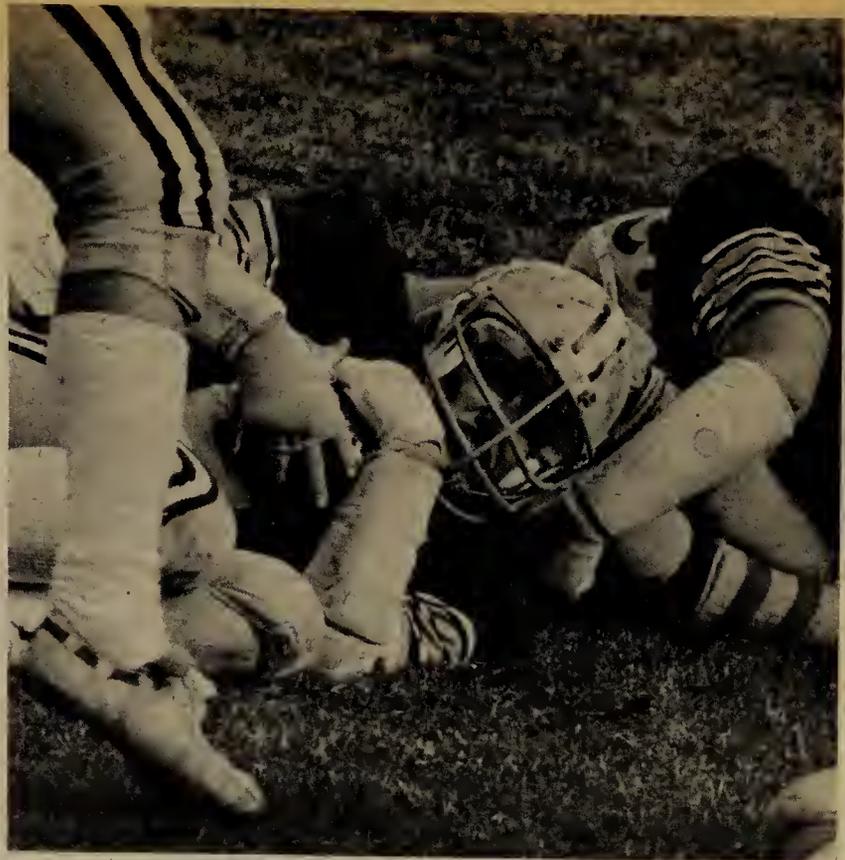

The Chaps looked sloppy in the game but one of the reasons behind that is the schedule the Chaps have just been through. In their last three games the Chaps have played the top four teams in their conference. The tough schedule took the edge off their fight.

The game against Triton this weekend should be a real grudge match. It begins at 1 p.m. on Saturday at Triton. For directions contact the athletic office. Hopefully the Chaps won't be caught looking ahead to the state title game like Illinois Valley and Triton were this weekend.

"If we have any desire for the title and a bowl game, it's gotta be this weekend," MacDougall remarked. "We're going to have to throw the ball to beat them."

The Triton game should be interesting, win or lose.

As MacDougall said, "Anything can happen in football."

Defensive end John Botica hangs on to a fumble in the game against Grand Rapids. Botica's recovery was one of three in the game. The Chaps went on to win the contest 17-6.

Dupers fall in first round of sectional tournament

It's going to be like the world series without the Yankees or the Stanley Cup without the Canadiens.

For the first time in modern history the CD volleyball team will not participate in the state tourney. Their demise was dictated at the sectional tournament this weekend past. The dynasty ended with one loss to Illinois Valley, 15-7, 9-15, 15-6, 8-15, 11-15.

"We forgot how to play basic volleyball," a disappointed head coach

June Grahn noted. "Not bump, set, and spike but instead bump, set, dink. It was very frustrating. We should have won and we just weren't ready."

At the tourney the number one seeded team Joliet went on to become the eventual champion beating Kishwaukee and Illinois Valley in the championship contest. Earlier Kishwaukee had beat Waubesa to earn the right to play Joliet.

Both Joliet and Illinois Valley will travel to the state volleyball tourney this upcoming weekend.

Even though the coach was unhappy about the squad's defeat this weekend, she was already looking ahead to next year. The end of this season will see four regulars leave the team — Sharon Wnukowski, Pam Flens, Angie Meyer, and Mary Grueber. But the point the coach highlighted was the fact that eight of her players will be returning next year. Included on that list are Denise Vincent, Jean Radavich, Bonnie Kolar, Mary Mack, Maria Marroquin, and Laurie Murphy.

The team will end its season with a non-conference game against Wheaton College on Nov. 4.

Gymnasts needed for winter action

Calling all prospective CD women gymnastics members. The team needs you.

New coach Carol Johnson is looking for more members for her 1980-81 women's gymnastic team. The practices are held from 8-10 a.m. on Monday and Thursday, from 5:30-7:30 p.m. on Tuesday and Wednesday night, on Friday from 6-7:30 p.m. and on Saturday from 1-3 p.m. The coach noted that attendance at all practices is not necessary. Optional routines will be part of the practices also.

Johnson was the former assistant coach at Southern Illinois University for three years before coming to DuPage. She has 10 years of gymnastic experience under her belt.

For more information on the team, contact the coach in the athletic office (K147), ext. 2364.

WOMEN CAGERS STILL NEEDED

The CD women's basketball squad is still in desperate need of team members. Anyone interested in trying out for the team should contact Coach Tanya Johnson in the Athletic office (147, ext. 2364). Practice is held daily from 1:30 - 3:30 p.m. in the campus gym.

DuPage travels to Triton for state play-off game

The Chaps got a gift last weekend and it's not even Christmas.

Last week after their 17-16 victory over the Joliet Wolves it looked like the Chaps would be mired down in a three-way tie for first place. That was if the Illinois Valley and Triton squads won as they had been expected to.

But remember if's can sometimes become not's and that's exactly what happened to Triton and Illinois Valley. Both IVCC and Triton dropped their games this weekend, putting DuPage on the throne for the N4C crown with a 6-1 conference record.

Triton (5-2) and Illinois Valley (5-2) were placed fourth and third respectively while Joliet (5-2) was placed second via a vote by the conference coaches on Sunday morning. Joliet had lost to DuPage and Triton, while Illinois Valley lost to DuPage and Joliet, by a score of 52-41 last Saturday night. Triton was placed fourth because it lost to IVCC, and to Harper this past Saturday in what could be the upset of the year, 34-29.

Once again the Chaps will travel to Triton this Saturday for their state play-off game. Illinois Valley and Joliet will tangle for the second weekend in a row when the Wolves go to IVCC for the other play-off match. The winners face off in the state championship game the following weekend.

This is the first time on record that the Chaps have won the coveted N4C title outright. In 1975 the Chaps shared the gridiron glory with Joliet when the two teams were co-champs.

The winner of the state title will host the Midwest Bowl against a team from Minnesota, while the second place team has a good chance of getting a bowl invitation from the Eastern Coast Bowl or the Coca-Cola Bowl. The bowl game will be held two weeks after the state title match.

POM-POM TRYOUTS NOV. 10, 11

Tryouts for the DuPage Pom-Pon squad will be held Nov. 10 and 11 in the Campus Center from 7-9 p.m. Anyone interested in the squad should attend the try-outs. For more information contact Peggy Klaas in the athletic office (K147, ext. 2364).
