

7-1-2011

Ever since in the early fall we walked

Benjamin Holland
College of DuPage

Follow this and additional works at: <http://dc.cod.edu/plr>

Recommended Citation

Holland, Benjamin (2011) "Ever since in the early fall we walked," The Prairie Light Review: Vol. 33: No. 1, Article 8.
Available at: <http://dc.cod.edu/plr/vol33/iss1/8>

This Selection is brought to you for free and open access by the College Publications at DigitalCommons@C.O.D.. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Prairie Light Review by an authorized administrator of DigitalCommons@C.O.D.. For more information, please contact koteles@cod.edu.

Ever since in the early fall we walked

Benjamin Holland

Ever since in the early fall we walked along that hill and thought of talking, but let our thoughts pool in our minds and kept walking

under the many stars
and tall pines, and we stopped at a young one to tear down vines that were beginning to choke and then she spoke—ever since that night I have loved her.

City Of

Julia Petrich

This City of Strangers . . .
 of vacant chairs between bodies.
 of artificial diligence.
 of doors that slam in front of you.
 of smug faces, and even smugger places.

This City of Solitude . . . of “table for one.”
 of gray, looming skies and constant winter.
 of under-eye circles and half-empty glasses.
 of worn-out haunts and worn-out names.

This City of Heartbreak . . . of shattered love, scattered love.
 of fluorescent lights on your sallow cheeks.
 of single means crazy and good means taken.
 of lonely means safe and better safe than sorry.