Board divided on GPA req for student trustee

By Jon Krenek
Editor in Chief

The minimum GPA requirement for the student trustee might increase along with other changes proposed in a revision of qualifications for the position.

The Board of Trustees debated the revision, and in particular the proposed GPA requirement, at a regular board meeting Feb. 8.

The proposal would raise the minimum GPA requirement to 2.0 because the current qualification is 1.5, the threshold for academic probation.

The GPA requirement was proposed by Board Chairperson Peggy Connolly.

"I'm real uncomfortable about defining a student in good standing as someone who is not under disciplinary sanctions," Connolly said. "What we are saying is that the student trustee should not be someone in trouble."

The board policy committee reviewed the proposal prior to the meeting, and did not recommend an increase in the GPA.

Policy Committee Chairperson Betty Yackley said the added requirement would provide less openness and opportunity for all students to participate.

"We're trying to be exclusive," Yackley said. "For us to judge whether someone is able to be a trustee is presumptuous."

Both candidates and incumbent student trustees would be required to maintain the 2.0 under the proposed policy.

Student Trustee Sara Allen, who was sworn at the meeting in to replace former Student Trustee Patrick Kelly, said she didn't think the 2.0 requirement was asking too much of students.

"It would help to provide a good assessment of what goes on in the classroom at CD," Allen said. "And beyond what goes on in the recreation center."

Trustee Bill Bunge, who also serves on the policy committee, said he felt the requirement would go "against the grain" of the community college mission and be hypocritical of the philosophy of inclusion.

"It is totally irrelevant to say they have to maintain an A or a B or a C average to make decisions," Bunge said.

"It's arrogant."

The revision also includes clarification of the eight credit hour enrollment requirement specifying that the student trustee be enrolled in those credits by the first day of the quarter.

"We're trying to be exclusive."

—Trustee
Betty Yackley

Connolly said that issue was unclear when trustees voted 4-3 to remove Kelly from office in January.

Kelly had fallen two credits short of the eight credit hour requirement, and said he intended to enroll in an additional course to meet the requirement before being removed from office.

The proposed revision also requires that eight credit hours be completed, restricting "incomplete" grades or course withdrawals.

It will also restrict incumbent student trustees from serving in either the legislative or executive branch of SGA.

Trustees will vote on the revisions at the regular board meeting in March.

If they are approved they would take effect when the new student trustee takes office in April according to Connolly.

The student trustee will be sworn into office in April following the Mar. 8 election.

Students named to All-USA team

Dunne

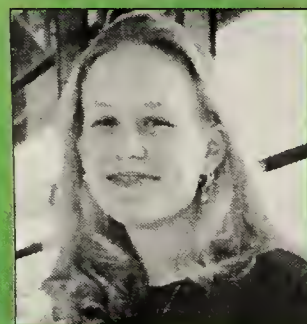

CD's All-USA academic team members for 1995-96 are Maureen Dunne, 19, of Downers Grove and Laura Anderson, 19, of Wheaton.

The All-USA academic team is co-sponsored by Phi Theta Kappa, the American Association of Community College and USA-Today for students who achieve academic excellence.

They were selected by a committee of faculty, students and administrators at CD as nominees for first-team All-USA honors.

First team members will be selected by a national committee next month, and have their names and pictures published in USA-Today.

Dunne is double-majoring in psychology and biology, has a 4.0 GPA, and aspires to work in medical and clinical research.

Anderson

She is involved at CD as President of Psi Beta, an SGA Senator, and a member of the speech team and Student Literacy Corps.

She is also a volunteer for the Alliance for the Mentally Ill and the Autism Society of Illinois.

"I'm trying to get real involved with autism right now," Dunne said. "I'm doing research on it."

Anderson is double-majoring in psychology and English, has a 3.6 GPA, and aspires to study the relationship between the mind and body.

She is involved in CD as SGA vice-President and board member of the United States Student Association.

2-10

A student reported that he had been struck by another student during a fight that resulted from an intramural basketball game.

The Department of Public Safety identified the suspect as Joseph Clark, 23, of Naperville after receiving a physical description from the student Clark had allegedly struck.

Clark admitted to striking the other student, saying he had been cut off by him at the knees while going for a basket.

The other student said he was not interested in filing a complaint.

The PE Administration said both parties will be banned from intramural activities for the rest of the quarter.

2-4

Gang and Satanic graffiti was reported in 12 men's washrooms in the SRC and IC buildings.

2-8

The Department of Public Safety arrested Maximillian Carboaza, 23, of Hanover Park for an outstanding warrant in Glendale Heights.

Officers arrested Carboaza after patting him down for weapons because the Glendale Heights Police apparently classified him as "armed and dangerous" due to a prior weapons charge.

Carboaza was later taken into custody by the Glendale Heights police and transported to DuPage County Jail.

2-14

A CD staff member reported a gold box chain necklace with a 1/2 carat heart-shaped diamond and smaller surrounding diamonds missing.

The staff member reported the necklace missing between 10:30 a.m. and noon, after attempts by herself and co-workers to locate it failed.

The necklace had apparently fallen off when she was either putting on or taking off her coat, or had fallen off because the clasp didn't close correctly.

The necklace is valued at $2,100.

Forum

Pandering tax cuts under deficit cloud

In Washington, D.C., and in the state capitals from New York to California, leaders of both political parties are talking about tax breaks for people like me who are relatively well off, and cutting programs to help poor people. There is hardly a trickle of opposition.

At the federal level, to enact tax cuts when we have a huge deficit is bad government. It is pandering to the worst in all of us.

However, we're not talking primarily about reducing the deficit, but imposing burdens on the poor.

No one is crude enough to say, "let's beat up on poor people." Sometimes leaders talk about welfare reform, that's what they mean. Sometimes when they talk about welfare reform there are not-so-subtle hints of racism.

Welfare reform must have a jobs component or it will not be genuine reform. It will be a shifting of boxes on an organizational chart, enough so that political leaders can claim that they did something, but nothing will ever happen to get the poor out of poverty.

We now have 23 percent of our children living in homes below the poverty level, and one recent study puts the figure at 26 percent. No other Western industrial nation has anywhere near that figure.

Under President Lyndon Johnson the old Works Progress Administration, people worked four days a week, and on the fifth day they had to be out trying to get a job in the private sector. We did great things for the nation and people had pride in what they did. No one takes pride in sitting at home, collecting a welfare check.

To move such a jobs program, the President has to ask us and explain the situation, and / or Congress has to lead.

Senator Paul Simon

Editorial

Wouldn't the end of problems with transferring credits be nice?

Imagine if the courses you take would be transferrable to any college in Illinois.

That's what the Illinois Articulation Initiative (IAI) is supposed to be all about, and is a state level program hoped to be set in full-fledged operation by 1998.

Students will pay a price for this convenience, however, that brings with it some of the problems big government programs can bring with them.

The first indication of the "big government" hassles IAI will bring with it is the setback two proposed degrees in the fine arts and engineering science are experiencing.

These degrees could have been available for students to pursue in the fall, but they will not be available now for possibly for more than a year because of "big government" bureaucracy IAI has created.

This is because the state will not approve them until faculty members from other community colleges and universities decide which courses will be accepted for credit in the degree's requirements.

The fact that faculty members from other community colleges and universities have a say in what CD requires in its degrees has many CD faculty up in arms.

This is rightfully so, because CD faculty can best assess the needs of students here.

CD isn't like many of the smaller community colleges in Illinois who are supporting IAI. In fact, CD's enrollment is almost double the enrollment of the second largest community college in Illinois.

Because of this there are many more courses available in an "enriched curriculum" that students can choose from.

The courses that the state decides to count for transfer in the program are likely not to include many courses CD students can take for credit in this "enriched curriculum".

This will have the effect of limiting the choices students want to take at CD, and could eventually have the effect of reducing course offerings for students here.

Limiting choices for students shouldn't happen, and that is one of the reasons students shouldn't "believe the hype" about easy transfer.

IAI is a program that CD students don't need because CD already has its own program for transfer established for years.

It might even be argued that CD's program is better than the one the state is proposing, and could come into jeopardy itself when IAI is scheduled to begin in 1998.

For'em

Board Chairperson Peggy Connolly wants to add a minimum 2.0 GPA requirement for the position of student trustee.

Adding that requirement is a lot like requiring trustees to have a background in education, because holding public office has to do with the public.

District 502 voters elected the trustees I've named because the voters thought they were the best candidates. Even though they weren't educators.

So why should a student have to be "academically palatable" to them to serve well as a student trustee.

If students are on academic probation (1.5 or less) they are failing, and it seems sensible to restrict them from serving.

However, if they are doing poorly it doesn't mean they will do poorly as a trustee.

Do trustees without a background in education do poorly as trustees?

I don't think they would agree with that, so what right to they have to think that students will!

It isn't for them to decide anyway, because they don't place themselves into office. Voters do!

The Illinois State Legislature has just approved a revision to the Illinois Community College Act, and Governor Jim Edgar has signed it.

The revision is aimed at strengthening the educational quality of community colleges by setting new requirements for citizens willing to serve as community college trustees.

"This revision will create a new level of expertise in those who govern an increasingly vital part of higher education in Illinois, namely community colleges," Edgar says at a press conference. "People who teach, or are familiar with the inner workings of education will usher in a new era for community colleges that places a value for education foremost and central."

From now on, trustees must have a background in education by "either experience through employment or degree".

This scenario takes place, and suddenly four out of five of our trustees find that they are no longer qualified to serve.

Trustee Robert McCray, who is a retired surgeon, cancels his subscription to the "Journal of Higher Education" and takes on a job as an aid for the natural sciences department dissecting animals and cadavers for an expansion of the Natural Science Center in the LRC.

Trustee Carol Payette is admitted as an honorary member to the Alumni Association for her dedicated service as a CD trustee, and stays involved by passing out popcorn and hot cider during finals week.

She doesn't qualify because she's a branch manager for Coldwell Banker.

Trustee Mary Sue Brown, who is the library administrator for the Woodridge Public Library, decides to volunteer as the "story lady" at the Student-Parent Co-Op.

And last, but certainly not least, is Trustee Nolan Baird who doesn't take it as hard as the others.

He was ready to take a break from public service anyway, and decides to get qualified as a scuba diving instructor at CD.

Scuba diving is one of Baird's avocations.

This scenario, of course, isn't true and the trustees I've mentioned here have taken different positions on what I'm talking about.

Student bicycling across country for Lung Association

by Cynthia Lamb
Staff Writer

CD student Jeff Kennedy's dad smoked a couple of packs of cigarettes a day, and his grandfather died of lung cancer before he was born.

This prompted Kennedy, 18, to contact the American Lung Association to obtain information to convince his dad to quit.

Now the Bloomington native wants to raise $6,000 for the American Lung Association by May 17, to participate in the "Coast to Coast Bike Classic '95."

"I need about 200 people to donate $3,436," Kennedy said "it's a penny per mile."

The 48 day bike trip will cover three mountain ranges and a total of 12 states.

Beginning on the shores of the Pacific Ocean in Seattle, Washington, the riders will travel through places like Glacier National Park, Mt. Welliston, ND., Moorehead and Minneapolis, Mn., Lancaster, PA., and finally ending on the shores of the Atlantic Ocean in Asbury Park, NJ.

Sponsored by Tim

CD Student Jeff Kennedy

Kneeland and Associates of Seattle, the trip includes 38 bicyclists, each raising money for separate charities.

Kennedy who has been doing serious biking for three years, is the only participant registered from the midwest.

Each rider must personally donate $300 before starting the fund raising process. To date, Kennedy has raised $1,418 toward his goal of $6,000.

For each dollar raised, half will be kept by the American Lung Association and half will be sent to Tim Kneeland and Associates, to scheduled.

The August 5 arrival in Asbury Park will include a party on a yacht with family and friends.

The longest day of the trip will be a 107 mile journey through the state of Montana. The shortest day will be a 52 mile trip through the mountains of Glacier National Park.

Cyclists can not stop for severe weather and are committed to completing the ride in 48 days.

Kennedy, a meteorology major, and a volunteer weather observer for Channel 2, is "nervous about cover each rider's "event expenses."

In the past 10 years, $8.5 million has been raised for charity by this organization.

Bicyclists will start the trip June 18. Kennedy expects to average 71.5 miles while riding an average of eight to nine hours a day, with breaks and lunch. Six break days are traveling through North Dakota in July's tornado season."

"I will be in daily contact with CD's Meteorology Professor, Paul Sirvatka for forecasts," said Kennedy.

The bicyclist will stay in hotels, college dorms and campsites. Plans are very flexible, however.

During the 1993 "Coast to Coast Bike Classic," through the midwest floods, six of the scheduled campgrounds were underwater. Riders were forced to use hotels.

Vans will carry equipment, and follow the cyclists, who only carry water bottles. Training and equipment choices are now secondary to Kennedy who is more concerned with raising the $6,000 necessary to participate in the trip.

Kennedy's dad Jim has recently quit smoking and Jeff is proud of him.

The end of the 3,436 mile bicycle trip will be the real celebration.

Donations to sponsor Kennedy's trip may be sent payable to the American Lung Association of DuPage-McHenry Counties, 526 Crescent Blvd., Glen Ellyn, Ill., 60137. Include "Jeff Kennedy" or "Coast to Coast Bike Classic" in the memo portion of the check.

Faces in the Crowd

Name: Kristie Hatcher

Birthday: July 16

Hometown: Council Bluffs,
Iowa

Position at CD: Bookstore
Director

For how long: Four years

I drive a: Company Van

The last good movie I saw was: Handmaid's Tale on Bravo

A book I would recommend is:
Anything – read for fun!

In my spare time I like to: Read

A fascination Person I'd like to know and why: I would like to have known my parents when they were young. They are both still living and such wonderful people. What were they like in their teens and 20's?

My most memorable experience was: Photographing nearly all the presidential candidates who came through Iowa during Carter's bid for election.

Major accomplishment/goal
I'd like to achieve is: To get the Bookstore moved

The worst advise I was ever given: Girls can't do that

My favorite sports team is:
Our twin daughter's high school
track team

Nobody knows I'm:
Really a hippie at heart – Peace

If I've learned one thing in life, it's: Don't burn bridges –
you may have to cross them again

My advice to the students of CD: Accept responsibility for your actions – the world doesn't owe you a thing.

Buffalo Theatre presents new play

By: Kat Zeman
Staff Writer

The Buffalo Theatre Ensemble will introduce a smashing comedy by Peter Shaffer called "Lettice and Lovage" this month. The story is of two women who forge an alliance to make their fellow citizens see the true beauty of England.

The action of the play takes place in England where the flamboyant Lettice Douffet (played by Kelly Nespor) acts as a tour guide in the Grand Hall of Fustian House, a house where Queen Elizabeth once almost fell down the staircase.

Lettice is an enthusiastic master of history and theater who gets wrapped up in her own enthusiasm, and begins to embellish in the historical past of Fustian House.

Soon the news of Douffet's exaggerated history lessons reaches inspector Lotte Schoen (played by Berkley Rhodes) of the Preservation Trust.

The two women become at odds over this and battle it out, but eventually discover that they have a lot in common.

"These two women both have a great passion for the old buildings of London,"

Michael Nowak plays Mr. Bardorff with Kelly Nespor playing Lettice Douffet during a dress rehearsal on Monday.

said Stage Manager Ron DeMarco. "They want to preserve the great architecture."

Sparks fly as Lettice and Lotte engage in their spontaneous venture.

As the bond of friendship grows stronger throughout the play, Lettice and Lotte find themselves cooking up medieval trouble on an Elizabethan plate.

When the play first came out, it was very popular with the people of London because it dealt with protecting the old British institution.

New buildings were being built and the old ones were being destroyed or just left to rot.

The Prince of Wales himself expressed his rage and concern.

"In this regard the play proved to be surprisingly and particularly ahead of its time," stated Author Peter Shaffer in the introduction to his play.

"It has been very pleasurable to watch it acquire a certain prophetic aura."

In one of the scenes of the play, inspector Lotte

ARTIST PROFILE

—Interview by Dan Peluso

Q What got you started in writing?

A Well, I've had a lot of experiences in my life that I wanted to get down into some kind of record for my family. I started taking classes here at CD. Mostly writing workshops and writers groups to help me get my thoughts on paper. That was about two years ago.

Q What is it about writing that is important to you?

A I think it's important for me to know that some of my stories could be a sort of guide post for someone else. I'm presently working on a series of memoirs that I'm going to leave for my family. I'm hoping that in some way, the stories I tell will be beneficial for them.

Q What do your stories have to say? Is there a pattern you notice?

A I think most of my stories show that life is not supposed to be a dreadful experience. Each day should be fun and something to look forward to. I like to deal with the philosophies of life and how life can be made better for some people.

Q It seems that your stories are based on real life experiences. Do you know when an event is happening to you, that it will make a good story?

CD writer Carl Lind.

A No. I haven't had that happen yet. What got most of the stories out that I'm writing now is the "clustering" of ideas that we do in class. "Clustering" taps into a part of the mind that is free and is the basis for most of my stories.

Q What is your writing process like?

A I just start writing. I don't worry about punctuation or anything, I just want to get my ideas down on paper. I let my emotions go. I think in my head that nobody will have to see it.

Q What plans do you have for your writing? Is there something you want to do but haven't yet?

A I want to finish the memoirs for my family of course. After that, I might try something that is more fictitious. Something along the lines of a Lolus Lamour novel. I also plan to take more writing courses here at CD.

makes a startling statement expressing her point of view on this matter.

"If I could save a great baroque city or its people I would choose the city every time, people come again" Lotte said "cities never."

These few words reveal the dedication and fascination that the characters have with culture and the preservation of history.

We see this theme throughout the play.

"Lettice and Lovage" first appeared in 1987 at the world famous Globe Theatre in London and starred actress Maggie

Smith, for whom the play was originally written.

The show then took off as a great success on Broadway.

It is an English masterpiece filled with wit and an undying passion for old English architecture and a loathing for the modern.

This play is a joint adventure co-produced by the Buffalo Theatre Ensemble and Pegasus Players.

"Lettice and Lovage" will be performed at 2 p.m. on Feb. 19, and 26; Mar. 5, 12 and 19; at 8 p.m. Feb. 16, 17, 18, 23, 24 and 25; Mar. 2, 3, 4, 9, 10, 11, 16, 17 and 18 in the Arts Center Theatre 2. Tickets $10. For information, call 858-3110.

Authentic African Ballet to perform in Arts Center

By Dan Peluso
Arts & Entertainment Editor

The Ballet National Du Senegal (BNS) will be presenting a dance and musical production "Pangols" at CD this weekend.

The word pangols is derived from a West African tribal language, Wolor, that refers to the spiritual nature of all beings and things.

Each dance in the program explores the spiritual relationship between man and his environment.

In traditional West African culture, the animate and inanimate alike are possessed of spiritual aspects—good and evil spirits—which control personality and behavior, circumstances and outcomes.

The performance is divided into eleven sections including songs dedicated to a famous war chief who resisted French incursions in West Africa, along with "Keme Bourama Song" which is a celebration of an African festival and "Balanta" which is the finale.

The musical accompaniment for "Pangols" is provided by the BNS ensemble of drums and traditional instruments; including the Kora, which is a 21-string melodic harp made from a large gourd; and the Balafon, which looks similar to a marimba.

In past performances audience members have been known to hoist themselves onto the stage to congratulate the musicians after their breathtaking performances.

BNS is the first dance company to perform the traditional dances of West Africa.

It is this company that the finest young African dancers and musicians aspire to join.

This is the group founded by poet and national leader Leopold Senghor in 1960 (the year of Senegal's independence) that has been acclaimed worldwide including 20 sold-out tours to North America.

Whether entertaining in local villages or on stages around the world, the company expresses the "true face of Senegal" with the authenticity of its work.

Members of the troupe travel throughout the country learning the music and dances of Senegal's fifteen ethnic groups to enrich their programs and preserve the West African cultural heritage.

The Artistic Director of BNS, Bouly Sonko travels throughout Senegal looking for talented musicians, dancers, acrobats and singers for the company.

Sonko visits small villages and actually participates in their ritual feasts, which are accompanied by dances and music.

In this manner, Sonko gets new impressions and ideas to incorporate in his choreography for BNS.

The performance of "Pangols" will be at 8 p.m. Feb. 19 in the Arts Center. Tickets $21/$20 for students and senior citizens. For information, call 858-3110.

Loosing streak to three

By Jeff Meade
staff reporter

The Chaps did more than extend their losing streak to three games in their 64-62 loss to Rock Valley on Valentines Day, they also missed a shot at being N4C champions.

"I'm ashamed of this game, and as disappointed with this loss as with any in my twenty-five years of coaching," said Head Coach Don Klaas. "We've lost three in a row because there isn't that fire in their eyes, that competitive spirit. We're not playing as a team."

The Chaps will be seated second in the Region IV playoffs behind rival Joliet Junior College.

Joliet now will stand alone as champions in the N4C if they win their final conference game.

The Chaps took an early lead of 18-11, but several turnovers brought Rock Valley back into the game and within two points at the half by a scored of 30-28.

In the second half CD fell to a score of 36-45 before the Chaps came back with several steals by Calvin Lucas and 13 points by Mike Benhart.

Benhart then tied the score at 62-62 with only 13 seconds remaining.

But the Chaps defense could not stop Rock Valley Forward Mike Bolton from scoring the final point in the game.

A final full-court scoring attempt by the Chaps failed. Their N4C record now stands at 8-2 and their season record at 21-7 heading into the regional tournament.

Lady Chaps win first N4C championship

By Gena Wilczak
staff reporter

The Lady Chaps ran off the court on Valentine's Day with their first ever N4C championship.

The 42-36 victory over Rock Valley Tuesday leaves the Lady Chaps 9-1 in the N4C, 20-5 overall and seated first in the South Suburban regional playoffs.

Head Coach Earl Reed said the Rock Valley full-court press gave the Chaps problems early on, but performances by Chandra Freeland and Michelle Bauler were key in the victory.

Both teams struggled at the basket in the first half, but by half time Bauler, Freeland, Jenny Schwartz and Lindsey Feris placed 15 points on the board.

Feris lead the pack with eight points and Bauler recorded three steals though the Chaps trailed 20-15 at the half.

With 15:00 to play in the second half Rock Valley lead 24-22, and the Chaps fell behind even more by 12:11 with a score of 30-24.

In the last four minutes of the game, however, the Chaps defense shut Rock Valley down and tied the score at 36 with 2:00 remaining.

Then, following a Rock Valley turnover, Freeland scored and brought the Chaps to a 38-36 lead with less than a minute to play.

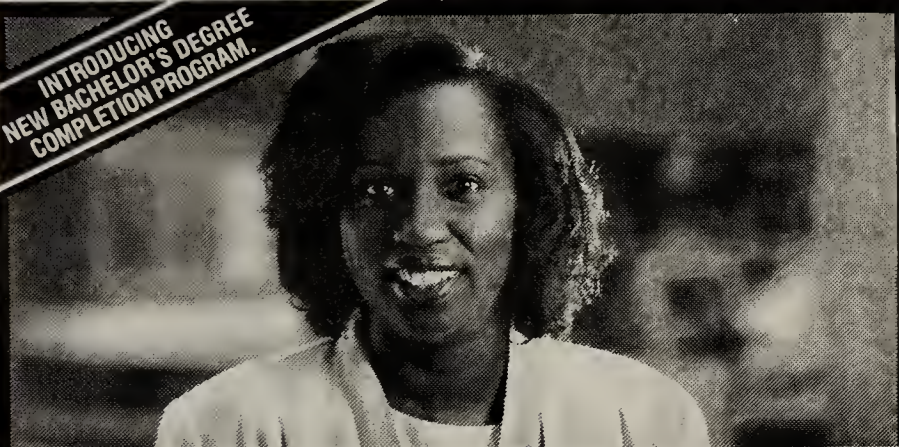

When Rock Valley started fouling to stop the clock the Chaps free throw shooting boosted their score to 42 points.

The Lady Chaps move the ball in bounds.
