

Fall 12-2015

Other People's Happiness

Tom Hill
College of DuPage

Follow this and additional works at: <http://dc.cod.edu/plr>

Recommended Citation

Hill, Tom (2015) "Other People's Happiness," The Prairie Light Review: Vol. 38: No. 1, Article 26.
Available at: <http://dc.cod.edu/plr/vol38/iss1/26>

This Selection is brought to you for free and open access by the College Publications at DigitalCommons@COD. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Prairie Light Review by an authorized administrator of DigitalCommons@COD. For more information, please contact koteles@cod.edu.

Other People's Happiness

At a truck stop near Tacoma, you broke down and bought a pack of Pall Malls. I drove the rest of the way, while you practiced French exhales.

Your mother's face crumpled when she answered the door. After dinner you said: "He's really dead." Something you'd heard people say in films.

After dark, we stripped on the beach, and I saw, for the first time, the way your body carried its grief; shoulders rolled, arms smothering your breasts, knees buckling against the water's wake. You kept talking about people we'd known years before; you wanted to know if they'd lost it too.

LAUREN LAWS

KT

Photography
Published by DigitalCommons@COD, 2015