Colophon:

Prairie Light Review is a juried magazine that is produced twice a year in December and May by a class of student editors enrolled in English 2210 at the College of DuPage. The magazine features the creative works of students, faculty, and residents of our College District 502.

Student editors evaluate blind entries and strive to bring to the magazine's readers the most engaging and creative work being produced in District 502.

The magazine welcomes original fiction, nonfiction, essays, and drama of 1,600 words or less; poetry of 62 lines or less; graphic essays of 12 panels or less; black and white and color photography; and 2D and 3D artwork of any medium.

Special thanks to:

Chuck Steele and the Office of Student Life, Dr. Sheldon Walcher, Dr. Daniel Lloyd, Dr. Jean Kartje, and Dr. Joe Collins for their ongoing support of the journal. Thanks to Tim Wayman and Bailey Kovac for their printing service at Alphagraphics in Lisle.
