Untitled

Joseph Hake
College of DuPage

Follow this and additional works at: http://dc.cod.edu/plr

Recommended Citation Available at: http://dc.cod.edu/plr/vol18/iss2/41 rather engrossed, seemed to have completely forgotten Silas sitting beside her. She was ignoring him, and Silas was not at all sure he liked that. “You was cryin’ all right”

Oh, this angered Silas downright. This, this girl, this... He wanted to shove her, he wanted to knock her down. Embarrassing him, she was. His fists clenched, even as his eyes welled up again. Silas kicked up the dirt in front of them, destroyed every trace of what he had drawn. Dirt flew everywhere, even in Melba’s hair, maybe her eyes. Silas couldn’t tell, she sat perfectly still her hands cupping her face. Seeing her like that, something stopped him, made him think, made him feel. And then retrieving the broken twig, he gave her one half, kept the other, and started drawing.

— Marcella Nowak

UNTITLED

To a moth
A tree doesn’t live
The moth lands
lives
dies
The tree stands unchanged

To a man
The Earth doesn’t live
The man is born
lives
dies
The Earth stands unchanged

— Joseph Hake

Published by DigitalCommons@COD, 1998