

Spring 5-1-1996

Phoenix

Yvonne Thompson
College of DuPage

Follow this and additional works at: <http://dc.cod.edu/plr>

Recommended Citation

Thompson, Yvonne (1996) "Phoenix," The Prairie Light Review: Vol. 16 : No. 2 , Article 38.
Available at: <http://dc.cod.edu/plr/vol16/iss2/38>

This Selection is brought to you for free and open access by the College Publications at DigitalCommons@COD. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Prairie Light Review by an authorized editor of DigitalCommons@COD. For more information, please contact koteles@cod.edu.

Phoenix

The bird
once timid and serene, rose up from the ground
like a plant through the soil or a flower breaking bud.
Upwards,
to the warmth of the sun,
where freedom and wisdom
lay in wait to caress its gossamer wings with knowledge and love.
The sun,
looked down on the bird and seeing it had found its true being smiled.
For the bird could not be part of the sun unless they melted into one being.
And the sun opened wide its arms of liquid silver and the bird
knowing there would be no escape once inside flew purposefully, with lightened heart to its rightful place, within the sun.

-Yvonne Thompson

Kayte Korwitts