

Spring 5-1-1995

Dangling Conversation

Marcine LaFountain
College of DuPage

Follow this and additional works at: <https://dc.cod.edu/plr>

Recommended Citation

LaFountain, Marcine (1995) "Dangling Conversation," The Prairie Light Review: Vol. 14 : No. 2 , Article 72.
Available at: <https://dc.cod.edu/plr/vol14/iss2/72>

This Selection is brought to you for free and open access by the College Publications at DigitalCommons@COD. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Prairie Light Review by an authorized editor of DigitalCommons@COD. For more information, please contact orenick@cod.edu.

Dangling Conversation

Please
Hold On don't leave yet.

But you know what I want and I know what you want and they just don't mesh any more.

Can't I try?

Why? to start this over again?
to fill me with the hope of happiness
and then leave me feeling bitter?

I,... I .. feel as though
I am losing ground
when you take
this from me
you take away
you take away
my most needed
stepping stone
my base for all that I believe in

how can I take all of that?
am I that important to you is there a possibility that I am as important to your soul
as you were once were to mine?

once were?
I'm not any more?

No.
that's why we are having this conversation.

"The process of letting go of what is completed or outgrown is absolutely essential to affirming life"
- Rachel Naomi Reman

By: ML