

The Prairie Light Review

Volume 10
Number 2 timepeace

Article 12

Spring 5-1-1991

Sunday Service

Joseph Johnson
College of DuPage

Follow this and additional works at: <https://dc.cod.edu/plr>

Recommended Citation

Johnson, Joseph (1991) "Sunday Service," The Prairie Light Review: Vol. 10 : No. 2 , Article 12.
Available at: <https://dc.cod.edu/plr/vol10/iss2/12>

This Selection is brought to you for free and open access by the College Publications at DigitalCommons@COD. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Prairie Light Review by an authorized editor of DigitalCommons@COD. For more information, please contact orenick@cod.edu.

SUNDAY SERVICE

Joseph Johnson

- i. I was a small child engulfed by the congregation sitting in the front row
- ii. I could see him rise — rise from his chair to the wood pulpit as he smiled
- iii. His appearance was that of an Angel while the sun shone on his white robe
- iv. His Book sat open on the pew He opened his mouth and began preaching Sunday morning service
- v. His words rung and echoed off the paint-cracked walls into the depths of my soul
- vi. His voice rose with rhythmic tone drawing me closer and out of thoughtlessness
- vii. Oh, what security those days brought — watching, listening, feeling only Him
- viii. Time has passed — the warmth and connection seem quite faint — almost black
- ix. The light shall shine with golden memories and my Father will bring the message.