

Fall 12-1-1986

This morning

Jennifer Bleuel
College of DuPage

Follow this and additional works at: <https://dc.cod.edu/plr>

Recommended Citation

Bleuel, Jennifer (1986) "This morning," The Prairie Light Review: Vol. 6 : No. 1 , Article 7.
Available at: <https://dc.cod.edu/plr/vol6/iss1/7>

This Selection is brought to you for free and open access by the College Publications at DigitalCommons@COD. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Prairie Light Review by an authorized editor of DigitalCommons@COD. For more information, please contact orenick@cod.edu.

This morning —
In a mad search for one something or other —
Someone opened the trunk in the attic
At 207 Oak Street.
Sudden scents of lavendars and grays
And mustiness were everywhere,
Invading the bustle of the household.
Black crackled pictures mock their subjects,
Long gone.
Once sacred diaries of the heat of moments
Turned ice-cold. Skeletal pages.
Seemingly petrified spidery lace
Crumbles at a sigh.
Warm sighs of dormant souls
Emit from their captivity.
Their dank breath fills the air
Until

This afternoon someone opened the door of the house
At 207 Oak Street.
And then turned away.
Nothing there to see, but old sheets,
Rooms gone stale with dead air,
Dust, and Cobwebs.

Jennifer Bleuel