

Spring 5-1-1986

Untitled

Claude M. Riendeau
College of DuPage

Follow this and additional works at: <https://dc.cod.edu/plr>

Recommended Citation

Riendeau, Claude M. (1986) "Untitled," The Prairie Light Review: Vol. 5 : No. 2 , Article 28.
Available at: <https://dc.cod.edu/plr/vol5/iss2/28>

This Selection is brought to you for free and open access by the College Publications at DigitalCommons@COD. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Prairie Light Review by an authorized editor of DigitalCommons@COD. For more information, please contact orenick@cod.edu.

Claude M. Riendeau

Money: an Autobiography

Timothy L. Chaffin

Through the years I have fathered many devoted children – some of whom have founded civilizations and ideologies in my honor. I poisoned my brother, much to the dismay of my mother and father; for although he was weak and undernourished, it was believed he could best act in their interest. I patiently watched his slow, cruel death and had no sooner buried him until I was spreading the seeds of a harvest that blooms this very day. The years have passed swiftly and mother and father have grown lax in their business dealings. It is for this reason that I have taken control of the entire business. I occasionally incorporate one of their feeble ideas, so as to not upset their fragile security of mind. It is of no consequence though, for I am in total control with my sons acting as my advisers and the public at my beck'n call, I am assured of limitless power and an undetermined life span.

Having cautiously spun the above web, it is appropriate that I should name those responsible for my attainment of power and immortality.