

Fall 12-1-2020

Compelled Mysteriously

Mardelle Fortier
College of DuPage

Follow this and additional works at: <https://dc.cod.edu/plr>

Recommended Citation

Fortier, Mardelle (2020) "Compelled Mysteriously," The Prairie Light Review. Vol. 43 : No. 1 , Article 12.
Available at: <https://dc.cod.edu/plr/vol43/iss1/12>

This Selection is brought to you for free and open access by the College Publications at DigitalCommons@COD. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Prairie Light Review by an authorized editor of DigitalCommons@COD. For more information, please contact orenick@cod.edu.

Compelled Mysteriously

I am led by something felt
on the wind, something unseen in the stars.
Silver jewels hang so close they almost drop in my boat – yet they remain out of reach.

Why do I row toward Hawaii?
I am driven by secrets
in the salt breeze, mysteries
glinting on the waves.

My grandfather never came to Kauai
yet his wandering ways
run deep in my blood. Like him
I sail west toward the golden sunset coming closer to a far-away dream.

Ahead looms the volcanic mountain
where Goddess Pele of fire and passion lives in her burning home.
I stare until I become part of the mist-entrapped mountain.

Something pulls me...
something written on the wind,
something moving
under the silk scrolls of the ocean.

Mardelle Fortier

