Belton: I Yearn For

I Yearn For
Kristy A. Belton

The freedom of madness snarling, spitting, heaving

I want to howl as I speak paw the earth as I dance and shit on human artifice

I want to smell rain on fierce wind feel sunlight on naked skin and roam in places where only wild things run free

I want to plant seeds in spaces roots have been torn out and breathe buds into blossom

I want to break open like fractured earth revealing worlds where soul leaps and sing my madness straight through to the center
