Something Different

Allison Anderson

College of DuPage

Follow this and additional works at: http://dc.cod.edu/plr

Recommended Citation
Available at: http://dc.cod.edu/plr/vol34/iss2/22

This Selection is brought to you for free and open access by the College Publications at DigitalCommons@COD. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Prairie Light Review by an authorized administrator of DigitalCommons@COD. For more information, please contact koteles@cod.edu.
I Tell Her

I tell her: we must get at the ground, deep beneath the dirt, where the roots are.

Only here can we make ourselves strong;
here, where our proofs and reasons lie buried.

We must separate the wheat from the chaff,
we must harvest only good things.

Remember how we want our lives to feel:
like drunkenness; gentle and warm,

eyes cloudy with God and smoke,
with the beauty of cold summer.

I thought of our lives patched together pieced together, pressed together and brimming with purpose, lives like old shoes; gentle and worn,

like the stars tonight –wherever they are– bright but hidden.

Something Different

The cabin's air was stale and cold
His rotten heart iced over
A blood-shot flight to Walden Pond
To escape his new ex-lover