Love: A Composer

Robert N. Georgalas
College of DuPage

Follow this and additional works at: http://dc.cod.edu/plr

Recommended Citation
Available at: http://dc.cod.edu/plr/vol19/iss1/49

This Selection is brought to you for free and open access by the College Publications at DigitalCommons@COD. It has been accepted for inclusion in The Prairie Light Review by an authorized editor of DigitalCommons@COD. For more information, please contact koteles@cod.edu.
“Are you sure you wouldn’t like another margarita, Miss?”
“No, I’m fine.”
He goes back inside.
“You are too kind,” Ella says.
I wave my arm. “You deserve a new pair of shoes.”
The scotch in my drink is like the moon. Not quite half-full. I watch a pair of boys come down the beach and start to dig for crabs in the sand. They have a big bucket and two short shovels. After a little digging they find a crab and toss it in the bucket. One of them says something and they both laugh.
“We will swim in the morning, then,” Ella says.
“Yes,” I say. “It’ll be nice.”
I finish my drink, and leave some money on the table for the drinks and a tip. We walk out onto the beach barefoot, carrying our shoes. Up close, one of the boys looks older than the other. Maybe, they are brothers, but maybe not. From a distance a woman shouts something I can’t make out. The boys grab their bucket and shovels and scamper down the beach into darkness. Hand in hand, we walk along the seashore in the glow of the night.

— Paul Lydon

LOVE: A COMPOSER

Love: a composer
wont to spy an opera
curtained in the heart.

— Robert N. Georgalas